The Practical of Activity:

In order to provide students of Economics with experience in education, training, and research work, efforts are made to involve them in state-level and national-level workshops and conferences along with the university curriculum. To keep them updated with current economic developments and to familiarize them with national-level research as well as Nobel Prize-winning economists, a poster exhibition is organized every year. Students are regularly made aware that substantial financial grants and funding are available for research.

Through the short-term course in Agricultural Entrepreneurship, the department attempts to give students practical work experience by taking them directly to workplaces. Students are trained in how to use research methodology, make detailed observations, and prepare reports.

As an outcome of all these activities, it is observed that students participate every year in university-level and state-level competitions, and they are also seen winning prizes in these competitions.

Activity:

Students are encouraged to give presentations on various research topics at the university, state, and national levels. They are periodically guided on how to prepare a research paper for presentations, how to collect information for research, and how to apply research methodology. Students are also taught how to write references using a style manual. Whenever a flyer for any competition is received in the college, students are informed about it and an internal competition is conducted at the college level for their presentations. From this competition, two students are selected and sent to the state and national conferences. As a result, it can be seen that the college receives awards every year.
